In the modern life in which we live, the interest of curious young people to learn foreign languages is increasing day by day. The increased focus on the English language is particularly gratifying. In this regard, our country is also developing and implementing many measures and laws to support the future generation. The introduction of the decision "On measures to further improve the learning system" can be a bright example of this. It is noted in this decision that "over 51,700 foreign language teachers were trained during the years of independence, and multimedia programs in English, German, and French were prepared for the 5th–9th grades of general education schools". It is a clear example of the existence of special conditions for learning and teaching. In addition, the National Personnel Training Program has been launched, which includes a comprehensive system of teaching foreign languages to educated, modern thinkers. A system aimed at the formation of the young generation and further integration of the republic into the world community was created. Based on this, it is possible to say that it is necessary to teach foreign languages to both elementary and high school students and to teach them how to apply them to life.

Today, language learning among children is taking the form of a very interesting competition, because there are enough interesting and motivating reasons and factors, one of them is information and communication tools, and working with them is recording high performance among students. Schools equipped with modern equipment, classes with highly qualified teachers, various extracurricular clubs, television shows for children, online classes for developing lexical, grammatical and phonetic language skills, etc. , movies and cartoons are great opportunities for children to get quality education.

In school textbooks, grammatical structures are emphasized first and examples are shown. For example, the word "do" can appear both as an auxiliary verb and as a main verb.

- do you swim in the river?

- I always do my homework.

Research shows that children's interest in learning and research is much higher than that of adults. Therefore, it is necessary to try to carefully teach the knowledge that is given to children from a young age. For example, different types of education. It is also possible to improve children's language skills using yins, such as the game known as "Find the mistakes" or "Money lost due to ignorance".

In this game, a series of words are written on the board in order by numbers. Some of these sentences are written using incorrect structures, and some are correctly structured, and in the class, children are divided into two groups, each group is given an imaginary amount of money. they will have to buy the ones that are structured in the style, the group that buys the most mistakes without knowing the sentences will lose. we can learn and evaluate.

Teachers should take into account children's learning styles while teaching. As an example, it is appropriate to say that some children have a developed learning style through sight, while others have a developed learning style through hearing and movement in their heads. If teachers take these methods into account, they can achieve the desired result. It will be useful. And memorizing by hearing is called "Auditory learning" and the game "who are you" is very suitable for users of this method, because in this game one student is brought to the board and the other children who sit they describe the thing, and the child on the board needs to find what it is. To find out what the described thing is, the children listen carefully and try to find it, as a result, they get used to hearing words in a foreign language without knowing it.

In conclusion, it is worth saying that using different innovative approaches to teaching English in secondary schools and using different exercises based on the psychology of students can create a beneficial environment for students to learn a new language and have a great effect. will give.
